HIGH LEVEL DESCRIPTION

- What it does
    - Snarkbot is your friend that will stick up for you when people are mean or rude. But instead of fighting your battles for you, it will help you think of a witty response to any insult.
    - It will generate a comeback when given a mean phrase that an adversary might have said.
- Intended users
    - School age kids, specifically the kind that deal with bullies or other possible antagonists.
- Goals
    - Provide a quick and easy to use interface
    - Taylor responses to specific input as much as possible

ONE QUESTION

- Could you, or somebody you know, have used this growing up?
- Focus of the prototype
  - My prototype is aimed to focus on interactions for all the things you can do with this application.
  - I couldn't figure out how to actually let the use provide input using Balsamiq, so just click inside where you intend to type and I have Balsamiq entering random text for you.
- Where I want feedback
  - Is it easy to use?
  - Is it intuitive?
  - Am I missing anything?

INSTRUCTIONS

- The prototype is a Balsamiq markup. I submitted the pdf export of the prototype for easy use.

- You start off in the "enter user info" page. The one thing I require is that you enter your name
  - Not really since it's just Balsamiq. As mentioned earlier, just click in the text field

- Once on the main page, you can either go back to editing yourself or the adversary by clicking the corresponding icon. You can also simulate entering a response. Hopefully the UI is pretty self explanatory.
  - Hopefully it's obvious which is which
